An Editor's Table.

[W. M. Carleton, in a recent poem, draws the following good picture of an editor's table.]

The editor sat in his sanctum, his countenance furrowed with care,
His mind at the bottom of business, his feet at the top of a chair,
His chair-arm and elbow supporting, his right hand upholding his head
His eyes on the dusty old table, with different documents spread.—

There were thirty long pages from Howler, with underlined capitals topped,
And a short requisition from Growler, requesting his newspaper stopped;
There were lyrics from Gusher, the poet, concerning sweet flowrets and zephyrs,
And a stray gem from Plodder the farmer, describing a couple of heifers;

There were billits from beautiful maidens, and bills from a grocer or two,
And his leader hitched to a letter, which inquired if he wrote it or who?
There were raptures of praises from writers, of the smooth and mellifluous school,
And one of his rival's last papers, informing him he was a fool;

There were several long resolutions, with names telling whom they were by,
Canonizing some harmless old brother, who had done nothing worse than to die;
There were traps on that table to catch him, and serpents to sting and smite him.
There were gift enterprises to sell him, and biters attempting to bite him.

There were long, string "ads," from the city, and money with never a one,
Which added, "Please give this insertion, and send in your bill when you're done."
There were letters from organiztion—meetings, wants, and their laws—
Which said: "Can you print this announcement for the good of our glorious cause?"

There were tickets inviting his presence to festivals, parties and shows,
Wrapped in notes, with "Please give us a notice," demurely slipped in at the close;
In short, as his eye took the table, and ran over its ink spattered trash,
There was nothing it did not encounter; excepting perhaps—it was Cash.

Selected Story.

Aunt Jem's Bonnet.

Did you ever watch a canary flying about in its cage, and turning its head knowingly from side to side, as if it were in deep meditation upon some subject through all its restless hurry? Well, very much after that fashion, Miss Jemima Veer went flitting about in the little drab house under the hill one bright Spring morning. She shook out the white muslin curtains with a tender respect for their old age, and arranged them so that the darns should not show, placed a cushion carefully over damages wrought by little feet in the seat of the old-fashioned rocking-chair, and dusted the tall clock in the corner as faithfully as if its long hand were not missing. In truth, that room was a sort of hospital for disabled furniture; but then the individuals all had such a cozy, well-cared-for look that no one ever thought of noticing their deficiencies; and the little brown-haired woman who bustled among them was as bright and cheery as need be. But this day had an unsolved problem looking out from its eyes, and now and then Miss Jemima would come to a momentary pause in her occupation, and strike an interogation point attitude at the end of some mental question. At last she stopped by one of the windows, and drew from her pocket a somewhat faded green-and-silver purse—a lean, dyspeptic-looking purse, that flopped about in a downcast way, as if aware that it would be called upon to deliver up what it had not got. Miss Veer's thorough finger's searched its utmost depth, then turned it wrong side up and shook it, that no shirking penny might be hidden away in its corners. The amount in her hand was small enough when all was done. She counted it forward and backward, but it didn't grow any either way: so she closed her fingers over it, with the faintest breath of a sigh, and said, with a decided shake of the head:

"I can't do it. Teddy wants new shoes, Rob must have a jacket, and a bonnet isn't to be thought of."

Which didn't follow at all; for she thought of it more vigorously than ever after having ascertained beyond a doubt that there was no money to buy a new one. She did not need to look at the one she had worn all Winter to see how shabby it was; she could feel that, even with it away up-stairs in the bandbox. It had been twisted and turned, made and re-made, from year to year, until it was "poor but respectable" no longer, beside being all out of season; and so her head, bereft of its ancient shelter, went seeking a new covering. When the house was all in order, and Rob and Teddy laudably employed in trying to plow up the back yard with a floor scoop, she went up-stairs, and from among the cast-off treasures of a certain old red chest in the attic fished up a straw bonnet—immense in size, yellow in color, and of shape indescribable. She laughed at the effect as she tried it on before her tiny mirror; but after all, it was not a laughable matter; indeed, it seemed more like a crying one as she turned the antique affair on her head and wondered soberly what it would be possible to make of it.

Upon her meditation there suddenly broke the slight rustle of a stiff dress, and the sound of a footstep that spoke of dignity and 150 pounds, and announced the coming of Aunt Hester. It was the only announcement that lady thought it necessary to make, for she entered without the formality of a knock, seated herself in the rocking-chair, or attempted to do so, but immediately resumed her feet again.

"Hum! I advise you to put that chair out of the way, Jemima. One can't be always remembering that the bottom is broken out," she remarked, severely, "unless, indeed, you intend it as a trap to catch your friends in."

"If that was the object, I'd set it just outside the gate, and try to catch them before they got in," Miss Jemima whispered, rebelliously, to herself, as she arose to bring forward another chair—a sound, substantial wooden one.

Aunt Hester surveyed it doubtfully, as if she suspected some deception, but finally settled herself in it, shook her black alpaca into proper folds, and said,

"I thought I would call to see how you were getting on."

It did occur to Jemima that if she had known of her coming she would have got so far on as to be out of sight; but she only answered, quietly,

"About as usual we are, thank you, Aunt Hester."

"Aunt Jem! Aunt Jem!" cried Rob and Teddy, making a rush from the yard, getting terribly mixed up in the door-way, and each trying to explain the other's marks before he had made any.

"'Deed, Aunt Jem, we won't hurt it any—a rumbreller to build a barn with; 'cause we can't put our horses no where: and we want it top o' the chicken-coop. Say, may we!"

"Yes, dear, yes; but don't be so noisy, boys. Don't you see Aunt Hester is here?" answered Aunt Jem, indulgent but distressed.

"Yes; that's what we don't want to come in for," answered Teddy, with refreshing frankness. "Won't you please to hand the umbrella, Aunt Jem?"

Aunt Jem produced the umbrella, in full consciousness that her visitor was watching with grim disapproval, and was prepared for the speech that came next.

"You are spoiling those children, Jemima—completely spoiling them. I am really astonished at you."

It was a point upon which the lady's astonishment had become chronic, so Jemima did not attempt to lessen it, and a momentary silence ensued.

"Ah!" said Aunt Hester, in a more gracious tone, after her eyes had scanned every other article in the room, and rested finally on the bonnet. "What do you propose to do with that, my dear?"

"I don't know," answered Jemima, rather disconsolately.

"I recollect that bonnet. I thought it looked familiar, and I remember now. It was one my daughter Susan wore for a season or so, and then gave to your mother," pursued Aunt Hester, growing complacent over the memory of by-gone benevolence. "It is a very excellent braid, with a great deal of wear in it. Out of shape, to be sure, but I think it could be made over into a very suitable bonnet for you."

The "very excellent" article had appeared old enough and ugly enough before, but it looked a trifle older and uglier still to poor Jemima now, though she scarcely knew why. She turned it about on her hand, and fell to wondering a little drearily why it was she never had anything new—anything all her own. It seemed to her that all her life she had been obliged to build upon other people's foundations, to make straight when others had blundered, and take up things where others had stopped. Her work never came to her in the raw material; it was always what somebody had used, or spoiled, or begun. Back through the twenty-eight years of her life, so nearly as she could remember, it had been the same. Housekeeping cares had fallen early upon her childish shoulders, when her invalid mother died. Then there had been the constant planning and working to procure what her careless, improvided father did not provide, to economize where he wasted; a pretty sister to be snubbed by and worked for, until she made a runaway marriage with a gentlemanly scamp; and the same sister to console and care for during what remained of her brief life, when she came back, deserted and broken-hearted. Rob and Teddy were the legacies she left. Well, they were not Jemima's own, either; but they were a wonderful comfort to her. Very thought of them made her pause suddenly in the midst of her questioning whether she would not have builded better and more successfully if she could have laid her own corner-stones—reared a structure of her own instead of filling breaches in the broken walls of others. Those two little faces stopped the train of "might have beens," and made her murmur, woman that she was, "Dear boys! I wouldn't give them up for anything."

"It can be whitened, pressed into shape, and made very presentable," broke in Aunt Hester's voice.

"True," answered Jemima, slowly, thinking of her life instead of her bonnet. "Yes, I hope it will be made presentable at last, though it does not look so now."

"Why, it's the best of braid," interposed Aunt Hester, with some severity. She fancied the remark was a slight disparagement of daughter Susan's taste—a thing not to be tolerated.

That tone aroused Aunt Jemima from her revery at once. She discovered the good qualities of the braid immediately, and Aunt Hester, somewhat mollified, took her departure.

"Send it to a milliner's and have it bleached and made over; advice very easy to give, but not so easy to take, under the circumstances," commented Jemima, left to herself again. "No, most excellent bonnet, you will have to submit to being sewed over by my own fingers and no others, and take such bleaching as I can give you, Pity, considering your past grandeur; but it can't be helped."

She was an energetic little woman, and so in a very short space of time she had arranged in the back-yard a closely-covered barrel, with a pan of coals sprinkled with brimstone placed in the bottom of it, and the antiquated straw fastened near the top, and left to whiten in the smoke. Rob and Teddy were duly advised of the contents of the barrel, and warned not to molest it; and then Miss Jemima went cheerily back to the house and her work of darning small stockings and planning for diminutive jackets.

The out of-door world was very lovely that Spring morning, and she stole glances at it now and then through the little window—delighting in the fresh green grass and blossom-laden trees of the tiny yard in front, and watching with kindly human interest the occasional passers-by on the road beyond. These last were not many, for it was only a quiet village road; but presently there passed a team with an unusual load—a large, heavy millstone. The driver walked beside it as it moved slowly along, and following it a short distance behind was another person, whom Jemima scanned more closely—a man some thirty-three or four years of age, medium-sized, bronzed and bearded, and dressed in a plain suit of gray. There was nothing very remarkable in his appearance: nevertheless, he was a personage of some interest to the villagers as being the new owner of the mill over the hill. The former owner had failed to make it profitable, and for a year or two it had stood idle. When, therefore, it was known that it had been sold, and was to be repaired and put in running order, there was a variety of opinions and some shaking of heads among the sages of the little place. There were some who carried their disinterested kindness so far as to inform the new-comer that it "wouldn't pay," he would "sink money," etc. To all of which Cade Barclay listened good naturedly, answering but little, except with his frank, sunny smile, and then went steadily on his way, apparently quite undisturbed by their predictions.

Of the merits of the question or the man Jemima knew nothing; but there was a quiet, resolute air about him, a certain self-reliance and determination betraying itself even in his firm, quick step, as he passed, that gave her the impression that he saw quite as clearly into his own affairs as others could see for him, and made her fancy that she should trust his judgment as soon as the wisest of them all. The road wound around the little house, and up over the hill at the back of the garden, so that the great wheel and its owner disappeared from her view at the front window while she was still thinking of them. So little that was new came to disturb the serenity of the place that it was not marvelous that the people indulged in speculations concerning this enterprise, or that Jemima, in her nook, should feel some interested in it. Her meditations were still tending in that direction, when suddenly there came a rushing, rolling sound, a crashing as of breaking bushes, a scream from Rob and Teddy that would have done credit to two Indians, and then something struck the corner of the house so heavily as to make it all jar and tremble.

Jemima sprang to her feet, and was out at the door in an instant. The boys were certainly not killed; she saw that at a glance; neither were they injured in lung or limb, for the shouting and gesticulations were wild and furious.

"Aunt Jem! Oh, Aunt Jem, look! Just look?"

Aunt Jem did look—at the broken back fence, leveled currant-bushes, flattened flower-beds, last at the front yard, where reposed the cause of all the mischief—the large millstone.

"It comed tumbling the hill right down on to our back yard, and some of the fence was there besides the currant-bushes, and Rob and me we yelled, you'd better believe!" lucidly exclaimed the astonished Teddy.

"It's a mercy you were not killed," began Aunt Jem's trembling lips; but Rob interrupted her with another vociferous "Oh, look!" and pointed to a brisk bonfire that was springing up in front of them. Jemima's bleaching apparatus had been overturned, and the coals emptied out of the pan had set the barrel in a blaze. A bucket or two of water soon extinguished the fire; but alas for the bonnet! it was woefully blackened instead of whitened, and burned beyond all possibility of making over.

The group gathered about the ruins in dismay, for the children were quick to detect the look of trouble in Aunt Jem's face, and even they understood the case well enough to know that articles destroyed were not always easily replaced.

"No one hurt, I hope?" said a voice just behind them—a manly voice, though a trifle hurried and anxious.

Jemima looked up, met the kindly, questioning glance of a pair of blue eyes, and recognized Mr. Barclay. She started a little, not having noticed his approach, but she answered promptly, "No, Sir, no one hurt in the least."

"Really, I don't know how such an accident could have happened," he remarked, as if even yet bewildered by the affair. "There must have been some carelessness in loading the stone, I suppose; for when we were part way up the hill the wagon tilted a little, and the stone slipped off and came crashing down. Its force was mostly spent before it reached your place, but I see it has done damage enough as it is;" and a swift, comprehensive glance swept flower-beds and broken bushes.

"Nothing very serious—nothing but what a little labor will make right again," courageously and politely responded Miss Jemima, noticing the direction his eyes had taken.

"No, it won't," interposed Master Teddy; "'cause Aunt Jem's bonnet what she had ableachin' in the barrel is all burned up. It was goin' to be her Sundayest one, too; an' now she can't go to meetin, nor nothin'; only I'll lend you my hat, Aunt Jem."

"Hush, hush, Teddy!" whispered Aunt Jem, pressing the little fat hand that slid into hers, in appreciation of the offered sympathy, though her face grew suddenly rosy, and it required some effort to betray no discomposure. "No, Sir; there's not much harm done. I am thankful it is no worse."

"So am I. Some one might have been killed by it," he answered, gravely, stealing a curious glance at the charred barrel, meanwhile, pondering Teddy's remark. Not very well versed in millinery matters was Cade Barclay. A sister he had never had, and his mother had been dead now nearly a year. Where the neat Quaker-like bonnets she had worn during her lifetime came from it never occurred to him to enquire. But he felt tolerably certain that they had not been conjured out of a barrel in the back yard. He knew that there were such places where such articles were sold, and fancied that most ladies bought them.—Brewing them at home, in barrels, over a fire, struck him as rather an original plan, and he strongly suspected, Teddy's lament taken into account, that it indicated a shortness of funds. He was very sorry for the mischief his rolling stone had caused, and this particular part of it seemed the most difficult to remedy.

"You must let me compensate as far as possible for the trouble I have caused you," he began; but Miss Jemima so quickly and decidedly declared the injury of no consequence that there was nothing more to be said. His honest heart was still perplexing itself over the problem, when a small specimen of the canine race presented itself to view, and Teddy caught it up.

"This is my dog; he come to live with us without nobody askin' him. Aunt Jem don't like him much 'cause he ain't a Newfounder; he is a rat terror."

"Ah! is he?" said Mr. Barclay, becoming suddenly interested. "Such an animal is very useful about a mill sometime, where there are a great many rats and mice. I wouldn't mind giving $5 for him, if you were willing to let him go. Wouldn't you sell him for that?"

"Yes, Sir," answered Teddy, promptly; and a bill was passed into the little palm, and the dog transferred to its new owner. Miss Jemima viewed this proceeding rather doubtfully; still, as she was not consulted in the matter, and the gentleman appearing as much interested in the bargain as Teddy himself, she did not see how to interfere. The dog might be valuable; she really did not know. Mr. Barclay seemed wonderfully well satisfied himself, and hold fast to his purchase as if it were a rare prize, while he discussed with Miss Jemima the removal of the ponderous ornament from the front yard.

"You will, at least, let me come and help put this garden into order," he said, as he turned away—a proposition she could not readily have declined, even if he had given her a chance to do so, which he did not.

"Now, Aunt Jem, now you can have a new bonnet; and not an old smoked one, either," said Teddy.

And Aunt Jem did have a new bonnet—a pretty white chip, with fresh, spring-like green ribbons, that it seemed a positive luxury to her to put on. You would think a respectable bonnet could scarcely be purchased for so small a sum. Mr. Barclay had entertained some fears on that subject too, though he had offered as high as he dared for the dog; but he was perfectly satisfied when he saw her come into church the next Sunday, leading Rob and Teddy. Was she to be blamed for enjoying the whole service better because of those soft, becoming ribbons that framed her pretty brown hair and quiet face? No; she did not think about the bonnet, she only felt it; but when she was at home again, slowly untying the strings before her little mirror, she whisperd softly to herself, "I do believe the Great Love that blesses all our lives cares for our happiness even in such little things as these, else all this wouldn't have happened so strangely."

It took a great many evenings to get those flower-beds into perfect order again, but Mr. Barclay persevered in his work with praiseworthy fidelity,; and having bestowed so much labor upon them, it was natural that he should feel a more than ordinary interest in them, and visit them all through the Summer. There were many happy evenings spent in the tiny moon-lit portico, with the conversation wandering to deeper than floral subjects; and he learned to look upon that spot as a little haven of peace, and gentle thoughtful, unselfish Aunt Jem as the pleasantest of companions. So it happened that when the Autumn came he had won her consent to his taking care of her flower-beds and buying her new bonnets always.

Aunt Hester, who like many another worthy lady, was an unconscious worshiper of success, greatly approved of Mr. Barclay. She was very gracious in her commendation of the new arrangement, remarking, with an unwonted attempt at facetiousness, that she did not know that she could "ever believe again that rolling stones gather no moss."

NORTH CAROLINIAN. THE CONGRESSIONAL QUESTION. New Books, Periodicals, &c.

The Congressional question is beginning to agitate the political circles in this District. We have already announced our belief that Mr. Martin will be a candidate, and we have also expressed the opinion that he could be elected if he would consent to run. To our mind, Mr. Martin is more than ever the very man we should support. Mr. Cowper, too, is a most estimable gentleman, and we have always supposed that our colored friends were satisfied with him. But we are not aware that Mr. Cowper has ever been nominated. If he has been so nominated, we have not heard of it. Mr. Martin has been the honest choice of every true Republican in the District. He certainly has proved himself a true and faithful friend. His services in the Senate have been of the highest character, and we know of no one who has a stronger claim upon the support of the Republicans of this District. He certainly has the confidence of the people, and would accommodate a large and influential constituency. Besides, he is able, honest, and competent. He is a gentleman of character and standing, and is well known throughout the State. He is a man who would be a credit to the District, and who could represent it with honor to himself and with profit to the people. We know of no one who could be more acceptable to the Republicans of this District. We know of no one who could more thoroughly command the confidence of the people. We know of no one who could more thoroughly represent the wishes of the people. We know of no one who could more thoroughly represent the principles of the Republican party. THIS WEEK'S ADVERTISEMENTS.

We call attention to the following new advertisements in this issue.

A Triumph.
An Act to amend the Charter of Elenton.
J. Pritchett's Notice.
To Planters.

Local and Personal.

☞ Several communications were handed in too late for this issue.

☞ There will be a public Ball at Camden Court House this evening.

☞ Several more new street lamps have been put up. Let us still have a few more.

☞ Whenever we hear a man cursing the town we calculate he had better leave it for the town's good.

☞ We learn that we are to have a Book and Periodical Store. When opened let it be liberally patronized.

☞ It once was, when men where worthy of office the people knew it first, but now the office seeker first finds it out.

☞ Out again—our friend Capt. HARNEY. His many friends are glad to know that he has recovered.

☞ Our Charlotte correspondent has forgotten our rule never to publish a communication without knowing the author's name.

☞ Senator SKINNER was in town last week. Wish we could endorse him politically as stongly as we can personally. But as we can't we won't.

☞ "Absence makes the heart grow fonder," but our Devil thinks it is frequently of somebody else. Ask "Josiah" of Nixonton.

☞ Senator SPEED will accept our thanks for a copy of the "Captions of the Public Acts and Resolutions passed at the session of 1871 and 1872."

☞ We have reports of several vessels ashore on the Beach at Body's Island. No particulars.

☞ A prominent gentleman at Williamston in subscribing for the NORTH CAROLINIAN takes occasion to say:

"Although not exactly agreeing with you in politics, yet I must say you edit the best paper in the State." He gives evidence that his "head is level."

☞ Our correspondents are not obliged, nor is it any part of the functions of an editor to furnish brains to every reader of the articles appearing in a newspaper. If any one is unable to understand plain anglo-saxon it is the fault of Nature and not ours.

☞ We learn from Edenton that a dwelling house on Queen street, belonging to our friend SAMUEL T. BOND, Esq., was destroyed by fire on the night of the 12th. It is believed to have been the work of an incendiary as the building was unoccupied.

☞ We yield to the request made in a letter handed us this week, signed by nearly every prominent citizen of our City, not to notice the occurrence of Friday morning last. For their strong expressions of confidence and personal regard we return them our grateful acknowledgements.

☞ A correspondent—one who is intelligent and observing—writes us that the good seed sown by the NORTH CAROLINIAN in "old Currituck" is bringing forth good fruit. He says Republicanism is growing while confidence in the Ku Klux Democracy is on the wane. Glad to hear it. Just as it should be.

☞ Educated in the School teaching that no man has the right to take the law into his own hands we have ever insisted that every violation of it should be disposed of in the way the law provides. We always endeavor to practice what we teach. Let the law take its course. In its vindication every good citizen is deeply interested.

☞ We ever desire to be fair and impartial to all. We never have, we never will intentionally wrong or injure any one, be he high or low, rich or poor. Our paper is not run for the interest of any one man, or for any clique. Its columns ever have been, and always will be open for every Republican of character who desires a hearing. We may sometimes err in judgment—we are only human—but our desire is to promote the public good. Knowing that the authors of the articles recently appearing in our paper had no other object in view we yielded to the request to publish them. They were all written by natives to the "manner born"—all influential, active and working Republicans. They reflected on no man's private character and they were not offensively personal. So far as they criticised the official conduct of our good friends, the Mayor and Constable, we knew it would not hurt them. Indeed we thought a little "stirring up" could not fail to do good. We cheerfully published their rejoinders and defense, as we will do again. If in selecting an advocate they chose a Democrat, as is charged, we can't help it any more than we can help the fact that the bill to change the mode of electing a Constable for our City was sent, without public notice, not to our Republican member, but to a Democrat of a neighboring county. All this was simply a matter of taste and we are not responsible for it.

☞ "Pay your taxes" is the repeated request of Sheriff WOOD. The balance of the list of delinquents is published this week.

☞ The Panorama "Over Land and Sea" on exhibition at this place has been a success. We believe it has given general satisfaction.

☞ Two traveling Friends, DAVID BOWLES and RACHEL BINFORD, of Marysville, Tenn., held meeting in the M. E. Church at this place on Monday evening. Their discourses were well received.

☞ For the benefit of those concerned we take this occasion, once for all, to say that every attempt to muzzle our press by intimidation, or to swerve us one inch from our duty as a public journalist by means of personal violence, will utterly fail.

☞ We are under obligations to Rev. S. S. LAMBETH for a copy of the Minutes of the 77th Session of the Virginia Annual Conference of the M. E. Church, South, held at Portsmouth, Va. We always read these documents with interest as they always contain valuable statistical and other information.

☞ J. D. FULMER has placed the entire force of the CAROLINIAN office—editor, foreman, compositors, pressman and "devil"—under special obligations for a generous and liberal treat of most excellent Cider. It has already loosened up our pen to say to all who are fond of good Cider—and who isn't?—the place to get it is at FULMER'S, on Water St.

☞ Passing the establishment of our enterprising townsman Capt. JOHN S. WAUGH the other day we were politely invited in to see several Carriages and Buggies he has just finished. We were surprised to see such fine work—wood work, ironing, trimming and painting all of the best material and in the latest style. Indeed his work now equals anything we ever saw in the Northern shops. We believe in home energy and like to see native skill and enterprise encouraged hence we say to those of our readers who need a Carriage, call and see if you can't make a bargain with the Captain.

☞ About 3 o'clock on Monday morning last our citizens were startled and aroused by the alarm of fire. It was discovered to be the elegant residence of Dr. W. G. POOL on Main Street. As the building was temporarily unoccupied—the Doctor having moved out to his farm in the country—the fire had made such progress before being discovered that it was impossible to extinguish it. It is believed to have been the work of an incendiary. We learn that the building was partially insured. But for the active and heroic exertions of the citizens, both white and colored, the residence of his Honor, Judge POOL, would also have been consumed. He tenders them his sincere thanks.

——Since the above was written circumstances have been brought to light inducing the belief that the fire may have resulted from an accident.

☞ Several of our citizens—the editor among the number—interested in Development and Progress met at the house of Dr. UNDERWOOD on Tuesday evening to hear "a Philosophical and Improvement talk" by DAVID BOWLES, of Marysville, Tenn., who paid our City a short visit. It was an hour well and profitably spent. Friend BOWLES—he is a Quaker Minister—is a self made man. He has a philosophic cast of mind, logical and thoroughly disciplined. Possessing naturally an inventive genius, he has cultivated it—studied the laws governing Mechanics and hence is prepared to illustrate as well as apply them. His 'talk" was plain and practical and at the same time especially interesting Its object was to awaken an interest in the Mechanic Arts and Manufactures and infuse a spirit among the people that will result in bringing out and developing the latent talent and dormant energies of the South. Such seed sown cannot fail to bring forth fruit. By the way, the site upon which Elizabeth City now stands once belonged to his ancestors, his grandfather having sold it in 1807 and emigrated to Indiana.

To my friends and acquaintances and all whom it may concern,
I am anxious to relate, what I chance to learn,
During my stay in Norfolk, the City by the Sea,
In purcuasing Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots, Shoes and Groceries.
The first day of course, I spent in looking around
To see all the sights and find where bargains could be found.
And to my great surprise, I soon was convinced,
That Lowenberg & Jacobs sold the cheapest and best style of Prints.
And when I examined their large Stock of Goods,
Consisting of Dry Goods, Clothing, Shoes and Boots,
Hats, Notions Fancy Goods and Caps, Umbrellas, Trunks, Bags and Valises with Straps.
I was pleased and satisfied beyond a doubt
That 'tis useless to go to Noafolk and run about,
But just go to Jacobs, who hails from Nag's Head,
He' ll sell you Goods cheaper than any body else I'll bet.
And whatever that firm tells you, you can believe with truth,
As they are not men; who do business loose.

SINKING SLOWLY.—Diseases that progress rapidly to a crisis are not the only ones to be dreaded, Cancer or dry rot does not blast a tree as suddenly as a stroke of lightning, but unless arrested it destroys it as certainly; and in like manner chronic debility, although it does not kill with the swiftness of yellow fever, is as sure to sap the springs of life eventually as any acute disease, if not checked by invigorating medication. There is something inexpressibly touching in the spectacle of premature decay. Languor, pallor, emaciation, depression of spirits, and a distaste for exertion, are its ordinary symptoms, and they should be promptly met by tonic treatment. The best invigorant and exhilerant that can be administered in a case of this kind is Hosteter's Stomach Bitters. The stimulating principle of the preparation rouses the dormant energies of the system, and the strengthening and regulating properties give a permenent and healthful impulse to the vital forces thus brought into play. The falling appetite is re-awakened, the process of digestion and assimiuation are quickened, the quality of the blood is improved, the excretions become more natural, and every organ that contributes to the nourishment of the body undergoes salutary change. By these means the repair of the physical structure is effected and its health and vigor restoed. In no class of diseases has the beneficent operation of the Bitters been more marked and striking than in those characterized by general debility and nervous prostration. Ladies affected with those ailments find in this most wholesome of all tonics and correctives the safest and surest means of releif. It is strong to restore and powerless to injure. Such is the uniform testimony of clouds of witnesses."

A TRIUMPH.

No medicine ever offered to the people has won for itself such a reputation in so short a time, as DR. TUTT'S EXPECTORANT. Wherever it has been introduced, it has superseded all other Cough remedies. It not only cures the Cough, but so thoroughly purifies the Lungs, that no fears of its return need be apprehended.

MEMPHIS, February 11, 1869.

Dr. Wm. H. Tutt,

Sir:—I have been suffering for nearly two years with a severe cough and great difficulty of breathing. My weight was one hundred and forty-five pounds; and when I commenced taking your Expectorant, I was reduced to one hundred and sixteen. I had tried almost everything; had terrible night sweats. I have taken half dozen bottles. The night sweats have left me, the cough has almost disappeared, and I have gained fifteen pounds in weight. I believe it will cure my cough. I recommend it to all my friends. With great respect, OLIVER RICE.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.

AGRICULTURAL, HORTICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC MATTERS.

Farming that Pays.

In a recent conversation with one of the best farmers in one of the river towns in this county he remarked that he hadn't made much money from farming for the last ten years.—His neighbors had sold hay every year at high prices, had money and government bonds "salted down."—If he had pursued the same course he could have "made money" in their acceptation of the term. "But do you mean you have made nothing by farming for the last ten years?" "No, I suppose not exactly. I have improved my farm, and now cut twenty tons of hay more than I did ten years ago. I have rebuilt and bettered my buildings, set out a new orchard, and schooled my children—but I haven't laid up any money." In this reply was obtained just the information we wished to get by our question.

Here was a well to do farmer, having as good a farm as "lays out doors."—In ten years he had by liberal manuring and judicious cropping doubled the yield of hay produced, and as all this hay had been fed out on the farm had of course doubled the amount of stock kept, and the means of improving and raising larger crops in the future; he had repaired his building at a cost of several hundred dollars; started a new orchard; obtained as good living; paid his bills and schooled his children (and much more is comprehend in this last than at first appear—it doesn't mean simply that he has given his boys and girls such an education as children obtained ten years ago, they had been sent away where they have received greater advantages, but in sending them away have come large expenses and yet half makes a complaint that he hasn't made much money by farming! Is he correct or not?

Isn't there evidence of more wealth than could be shown by his neighbors who have sold their hay every year, and salted down "legal tenders?" Hasn't he a better capital than they; isn't his investment, in the single item of educating his children, paying or likely to pay a better dividend than bank stock? And are there not all over our goodly State hundreds of similar instances where farmers have bettered their condition year by year, and yet they think they have made nothing? This is the farming which pays, and when such cases come to our knowledge, as they do almost daily, we are heartily tired of seeing the question so often asked by newspaper writers: "Does farming pay?"—Maine Farmer.

Raising and Consumption of Eggs.

There is perhaps no branch of farm products which is more certainly profitable than egg raising. It is at present very much left to chance, or if not it is made a speculation of in the shape of fancy breeds. It should be gone into as a business—not alone and separately, many as try to do, but as a legitimate branch of regular farming. The market is rarely overstocked with eggs, whatever it may be with peaches or corn. The consumption of eggs in manufactures is continually ahead of the supply in market. Not less than six millions of eggs are annually consumed in the glove manufactories of France, England, and other countries. The yolks of eggs, flour, alum, and salt are the materials with which the skin is made into soft leather, and it is then dried, worked over a round, blunt knife, and after a second washing and softening with yolks of eggs, it is ready to receive from the dyer the beautiful colors so well known to the public in the manufactured article of gloves. It is a fact not generally known that the most perfect manufacture of this kind in the world are carried on, at Annonay, a town about fifty miles from Lyons, France, a very large portion of the kid skins from every quarter of the globe being sent thither to be converted into glove leather.

An Ugly Horse Cured by Kindness.

Mr. C. Johnson tells in Our Dumb Animals the story of a horse whose task it used to be to drag a meat cart, and which, because of viciousness, was finally sold to the present owner, at a very low price. He would bite, tear, kick, run away—in short was entirely uncontrollable. Soon after changing masters the people, who had called the purchase a foolish one, were surprised at the difference in the horse's conduct. He would go fast or slow as desired; stop instantly at whoa; follow at master's call, and rub his head on his shoulder. What had made the change. Not force; the poor horse had been beaten, kicked and starved before; and grown more and more stubborn. No; but he was well fed, well watered; not overdriven or overloaded; never whipped, kicked, or scolded. Kind words were given him, and now and then an apple or lump of sugar. No gentler, safer, more faithful horse went on the road. But Indian fashion, he forgot neither benefit nor injury. Occasionally, when in harness, he saw his former master. Then, invariably, all the fire of his nature was aroused. His eye rolled, he champed his bit, and showed an intense desire to get hold his former enemy. Only the voice and caressing hand of his kind owner could quiet him.

Farmers' Clubs and Lyceums.

After Thanksgiving, if it have not been done before, let Farmers' Clubs, or Lyceums, or both be organized in every town in New England. The former has special reference to farming, while the latter may comprise all topics proper to be discussed before a public audience, composed of both sexes. We do not know of any other as good a way, or ways, as either one or both of these town organizations for the promotion of useful and practical knowledge upon all common subjects, whether economical, practical, social, moral, historical, or religious. Let the young, the middle-aged, and those even more advanced in life, engage in such exercises, for they will tend to quicken and promote the taste and desire for reading, for study, for thought, and for meditation upon all things whatsoever, that relate to the duties and obligations of social life. We speak from much experience and observation relative to these subjects. Now who will be the first to move in the several towns where this is read, for the immediate organization of a Lyceum, or a farmers' club, where none exists?—Boston Cultivator.

Our Recipe for Curing Meat.

To one gallon of water, take 1½ lb. of salt, ½ lb. of sugar, ½ oz. of salt petre, ½ oz. of potash. In this ratio the pickle to be increased to any quantity desired. Let these be boiled together until the dirt from the sugar rises to the top and is skimmed off. Then throw it into a tub to cool, and when cool, pour it over your beef or pork, to remain the usual time, say four or five weeks. The meat must be well covered with pickle, and should not be put down until at least two days after killing, during which time it should be slightly sprinkled with powdered salt pertre, which removes all the surface-blood, etc., leaving the meat fresh and clean. Some omit boiling the pickle, and find it to answer well; though the operation of boiling purifies the pickle by throwing off the dirt always to be found in salt and sugar.

If this recipe is properly tried it will never be abandoned. There is none that surpasses it, if so good.—Germantown Telegraph.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE.

OF VALUABLE

NORTH CAROLINA LANDS,

FOR SALE BY

GEORGE D. POOL.

Real Estate Agent,

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C.

In presenting my list of lands and other properties for sale, I would say that no section of the United States offers such inducements for capitalists and emigrants, as this section of North Carolina. In longevity and healthfulness, it will compare favorably with any where; and in easy and cheap transportation of products to market, in pleasantness of climate, in the sociability of the people, in great fertility, and durability of soil, no section can equal it.

A railroad will soon be built to Weldon, putting this place in direct communication by Rail, with the whole United States. This, together with our great fishing, farming and manufacturing interests, and certain early completion of already projected works of improvement for putting in nearer, cheaper and easier communication with the Ocean, will render this one of the most important commercial, and manufacturing points on the Southern country.

A Steam Saw and Grist Mill in the town of Nixonton 8 miles from E. City. This Mill has a fine wharf and store attached on deep navigable water, the engine is 40 horse power, a d all in good order. Adjoining the mill property is 40 acres of fine land on the River, with three houses, all for $1200. Near the same is a good two story dwelling and 12 acres of land for $2,000, and a good one story dwelling, with one acre of land for $500.

Also two fine farms in Pasquotank county, 10 miles from E. City, within half mile of church, school house and post office. A valuable site for a hotel at Nag's Head, 40 miles from Elizabeth City, and 50 miles from Edenton. This is situated immediately on the Ocean, and is a famous Summer resort for invalids, and those seeking health, comfort, and amusements during the summer months. It is in direct communication by steamboats and railroad with all parts of North Carolina, Virginia, and the North; and is equal in natural advantages to Newport, or Cape May. Visitors flock to this famous summer resort by hundreds and thousands, and a large amount of money can be made by a hotel. A charter has been obtained from the Legislature of N. C., for a joint stock company to build the hotel. There is now an old hotel on the spot, which could be cheaply repaired and bought for $3,000. This hotel, though imperfectly kept, cleared the proprietor last season, over $3,000. For a man or a company, having some capital, this is one of the finest chances to make money at hotel keeping to be found anywhere. The early attention of the public is invited to this property.

A fine steam saw and grist mill at Hertford, the county seat of Perquimans County, N. C., 18 miles from Elizabeth City. This mill has a fifty horse power engine, now in good running, two pairs of best French burr stones, and two upright saws. The house has a brick basement, and the building is large and in good order. There is one and a half acres of land belonging to this property, and a good two story dwelling, and other out-houses. The section of country adjacent abounds in the finest yellow pine, cypress, ash, poplar, and other valuable timber. This property originally cost $15,000, and is now offered at forced sale for the low price of $3,500, $7,00, cash, and the balance in six equal instalments, six months apart each with interest.

A fine farm and fishery in same county. The farm contains 400 acres of the finest land, lies immediately on Albemarle Sound where the water is 12 miles wide, and 18 to 20 feet deep, has good buildings, and fine neighborhood. The fishery is on the farm and goes with it. It has a new seine 2,500 yards long, and all the necessary boats, buildings, &c., (which cost over $15,000 two years ago.) The fishery alone, of a good season, will make from 5 to $10,000 profit to the owner. This property is offered at forced sale for the low price of $20,000, $7,000 cash, balance on easy times.

A store at South Mills, in Camden county, 20 miles from Elizabeth City, and 20 miles from Norfolk, lying on the canal where steamers pass daily. A fine chance for merchandize. Store is large with dwelling above containing six rooms, is in first rate order, has office, kitchen, dairy, and other necessary outhouses. Goods to the amt. of $50,000 per annum can be sold here, and at large profits. A splendid stand for a country retail store. Price $2,500—one third cash, balance in one and two years.

A valuable tract of land in Camden county, at South Mills, on the Dismal Swamp Canal, lying on the canal for two miles, containing over 200 acres cleared—two-thirds cleared, and in a fine state of cultivation, with good buildings, &c.; balance in valuable timber. Price $12,000, one-third cash, balance in one and two years, interest from January, 1871. This is a valuable farm for corn, wheat, and vegetables, and being midway between Elizabeth City and Norfolk, and located where steamers pass by the door daily, is a desirable and cheap property.

A fine farm of 600 acres within six miles of E. City, one mile from navigable water, and the rest connected with it by a road in the Spring. It is also well adapted to raising corn and wheat. This farm has a splendid two-story dwelling upon it, large barn, 40 by 60 feet, a large number of outhouses, by splended trees and shrubbery, is in a strong Union neighborhood, and altogether the most desirable place in the county. A little over one-half of this land is cleared, and the balance is covered with the finest yellow pine, poplar, ash and other timber. Price $30 per acre—one third cash, balance in one and two years with interest. Title reserved.

Sixteen houses and lots in Elizabeth City, with good dwellings, out-houses, &c. Prices and terms reasonable.

A valuable farm in Perquimans county, N. C. near navigable water. Has a fine dwelling-house with ten rooms, in spleaded order, with splended barns and stables—all in first rate order. The farm is very productive in corn, oats, wheat, cotton and clover. It is one of the finest farms in the State and is now in good cultivation, contains 585 acres of land, about three-fourths cleared and under cultivation. Price $10,000, one-third cash January 1, next balance in two equal annual instalments with interest at the rate of six per cent.

A farm of 370 acres 8 miles from town by water, and 12 miles by land, is offered for sale for $10,000 in easy payments. This tract of land lies immediately on the River which is 4 miles wide and washes the farm its whole length on one side, and a branch of the River one mile wide, bluds it on one end. The land is well adapted to raising corn, wheat, cotton, oats, peas, &c., lies high and dry, and is susceptible of the highest improvement. Fronting and looking over, as it does, two large sheets of navigable water, where steamers and sailing vessels are constantly passing, carrying freight and passengers to all parts of the country, its location and surroundings, are of the most fascinating and desirable character. There is a fishery on it ready for working a seine 2,500 yards long, and which commands a portion of both streams of water, and can be made immensely profitable. The price charged is low, and the purchase a very desirable one. The buildings consist of a good two-story dwelling and out-houses.

A tract of valuable land, containing 356 acres, with fine two story dwelling containing 9 rooms and cook-room. Servant's house with 3 rooms, large barns and stables, all necessary and convenient out-houses, 3 tenant-houses near town, and immediately on the River. About 100 acres of this land is in fine wood and timber, balance in a fine state of cultivation. It has 8,000 grape vines one year old, 3,500 peach, apple and dwarf pear trees, five acres in strawberries which yielded an immence profit this year, ten acres in Lawton and other rare varieties of black-berries, 15 to 20,000 young peach trees with other choice fruits too numerous to mention. This farm has a public road on one side, and the River on the other, where strangers come daily to the landings to receive the fruits and vegetables, and carry them down to Norfolk, Baltimore, Phila., or New York. The land is finely adapted to raising corn, wheat, cotton, oats, and all other field crops.

The owner of this farm offers to sell in tracts, to suit purchasers, say in 50 to 100 acre tracts, and at prices ranging from 35 to $80 per acre, according to location, buildings, &c.

There is also on this farm a fine fishery, where a seine 1,000 yards long, and 20 feet deep is hauled every Spring. Herring, Shad, Rockfish, Sturgeon and other valuable fish, are caught by thousands at every draw of the seine. And the profits are frequently large. This fishery of itself is worth nearly as much as is charged for the whole property. The terms will be liberal. This is probably the finest opportunity offered any where for a profitable advestment.

☞ Fishery has an office, and two houses for hands besides fish house. Then some 500 to 1,000 loads of best fish manure on hand, besides over 5,000 loads of compost made ready for use. This goes with the farm.

A desirable house and lot in the town of Elizabeth City on the corner of two principal streets, the principal one, and situated in the best business locality in the town. The lot contains about two acres of land, and the buildings consist of a fair dwelling three stories high, containing eight rooms, all in good order, another two story building with four rooms and pantries, dairy, smokehouses, stables, &c. The dwelling has a good cellar under it. There is room on the front lot to erect two good stores, and they would occupy the best stand in the town for merchandize.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE LAND AND LUMBER COMPANY having a large amount of Real Estate of their own to dispose of, and their business having increased to such an extent, they think it prudent to decline acting further as Commission Agents for the sale of lands belonging to others. They will however be glad at all times to furnish every facility to parties coming to Elizabeth City with a desire to look at the country and make purchases if they find it to their interest to do so.

The following list of property, owned by the Company, is offered for sale on the most reasonable terms. Their object now is to acquire a larger monied capital for the purpose of further developing their unimproved lands and carrying out their original design of increasing the Commerce and General Trade of Elizabeth City.

As there are others in the Commission Business, parties are referred to their advertisement for further information.

ELIZABETH CITY.

The following desirable list of Properties in Elizabeth City are offered at very reduced prices for cash or on time payments at rates which make any of them excellent investments for capitalists. We feel confident that this City is destined to become a large place and property will advance rapidly. Emigration is now tending Southernward and the feeling is in universal favor toward Elizabeth City.

A large two story dwelling known as the Parsonage, with fine double Piazza, front and back, large out kitchen, stables, carriage house, with 17 acres of ground well enclosed. This ground is all within the corporation of the City, and is well situated to lay out in building lots and make out of it ten fold the price asked for it.

The Wharf Lots are 200ft deep and will be sold to any size desired along the River. VINEGAR BITTERS

VINEGAR BITTERS

J. WALKER, Proprietor. R. H. McDonald & Co., Druggists and Gen'l Agents, San Fran. Cisco, Cal., and 32 & 34 Commerce St., N. Y.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects. They are not a vile Fancy Drink, made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true medicine, made from the native roots and herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Vinegar Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequaled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No system of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.
